1. A prize of USD $15,000 is available to the best entry overall as well as two prizes of $5,000 for the best runners-up.
2. Entrants will be shortlisted by late August 2018. Shortlisted entrants will be invited to apply for the partner prize of $5,000 that comes with the opportunity to work with Teach A Man To Fish’s global programme The School Enterprise Challenge. Prize money for the Future Partner Prize winner will only be transferred once a memorandum of understanding (MoU) between the winning organisation and Teach A Man To Fish has been signed.
3. The use of prize money is at the discretion of the recipient organization. To receive the prize the winning organizations will require a bank account in the name of that organization and must be able to accept international money transfers.
4. The full list of award winners will be announced in September 2018.
5. Disbursement of funds is to be contingent on the submission of relevant proofs required and verification of these documents along with the achievements described in winning entries.
6. Teach A Man To Fish can not be held responsible for prize winners sending incorrect or insufficient bank details. Transfers will be made only when sufficient details have been given, and Teach A Man To Fish can not be responsible for issues regarding the prize funds reaching the beneficiary after the money has left the Teach A Man To Fish bank account.
7. Due to fluctuations in exchange rates, Teach A Man To Fish can not be held responsible for the amount of prize money the is received by the beneficiary. Teach A Man To Fish endeavours to send the correct amount of prize money stated in the competition details but can not be held liable for any differences between the stated amount and the final amount received.
8. Apart from the initial fee charged by Teach A Man To Fish's bank account to transfer prize funds, any further fees that are incurred due to payments being sent back to our bank account or other payment process issues that are not the fault of Teach A Man To Fish will be the liability of the beneficiary and will be deducted from the initial prize fund amount.
9. Winning entrants will be required to provide evidence of their organization’s legal status (e.g. registration documents) and annual accounts.
10. Prizes may not be received before December 2018.
11. By entering this competition you are consenting to allow representatives from Teach A Man To Fish to verify in person, where so deemed necessary, the truthfulness of any entry submitted, and to allow stories and images to be gathered for communications purposes. This might ordinarily take the form of visits to the organizations field operations/headquarters and to those of their referee.

5. Jury and Selection Procedure

1. Teach A Man To Fish retains full responsibility for the composition of the jury.
2. The jury is fully and solely responsible for the final selection of the winning entries. There will be no correspondence about the jury’s final decision.
3. Although the competition is open to all organizations based in Africa working in education, preference will be given in the judging stages to organizations which are legally registered in the relevant country, which have been in existence for more than two years, and which are able and willing to provide financial accounts.
4. Teach A Man To Fish and the jury at all times have the right to disqualify a participant, without the obligation to state the reasons.

6. Liability and Conflicts

1. Teach A Man To Fish will not be liable for any claims regarding the procedure or selection of the winning entries.
2. All conflicts will be made available for judgment to the Teach A Man To Fish Board of Trustees.
